THE OLIVER MCGOWAN MANDATORY LEARNING DISABILITY AND AUTISM TRAINING

Supplementary Information

The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism is named after Oliver McGowan, whose death shone a light on the need for health and social care staff to have better training.

The Health and Care Act 2022 introduced a requirement that regulated service providers must ensure their staff receive learning disability and autism training appropriate to their role.

The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism is the standardised training that was developed for this purpose. The Oliver McGowan code of practice outlines how health and care providers who are registered with the Care Quality Commission (CQC) can meet the legislative requirement introduced by the Health and Care Act 2022 to ensure staff receive training on learning disability and autism, appropriate to their role. About the training

The Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism is co-delivered by trainers with lived experience of learning disability and autism who are paid for their time.
It is a standardised package that is delivered by trained and approved trainers.

The consistent content and delivery means it is transferable between employers. It is the government's preferred and recommended training and is recognised by national bodies advising on standards for the health and care sector.
